ONE'S OWN MAN....

I live a funny kind of independence, probably a lot easier a few hundred years ago when people were counted on this earth in terms of millions instead of billions.

As long as a man has a mind, and experiences particularly his own, I can't see that numbers make any difference. I can see that individuals growing up in current numbers would have a different view.

It seems when the statistics and numbers game, which we cannot ignore, are thrust upon us time and again, that our singular experiences and abilities must concede inadequacy only because great numbers may not share them.

It is difficult to conceive of the future when now only the wealthy are conceded independent enough to run for president or to be independent enough to live something beyond the humdrum. It may someday be the next galaxy for people like me.

It used to be the freest man was the man without means, whose care was for the next meal or the next job for his family or himself, whatever the case. It seemed that people somehow believed they would survive, by individual or group.

The means, of course, are with us to deciminate centralized societies in a matter of hours or even minutes. And that hangs over our heads as much as mortgages, taxes or retirement hang over most everybody. That is why the President has been to Peking.

FREE WITH HONOR

A person can be independent and still honor the commitments surrounding him. But it is this peculiarly mobile, but striated society that is constricting itself so it won't allow the individual enough merit to "know himself". It's a terrible price to pay.

It is likely no greater search has ever been conducted than the hunt for "basics" now underway. Oddly enough, they have changed little.

These would include the right to be spontaneous and the right to appreciate whole persons and ideas without pieces of the whole being in absolute harmony.

Societies and people have always worked that way. And though we try to be compatible, the over-riding qualities of people, ideas, things, societies are what we understand. I never expected perfection before, but am led to believe now that people want to cast away the whole for inadequacy in a few of the parts.

Maybe it is because the "whole" of statistics and numbers has become bigger than the sum. Maybe we are rejecting elephants because the tail is too short or the trunk too long.

I think people learn from Winston Churchill's brief address to a group of schoolboys at a prep school he once attended and was found wanting as a student, not unlike Einstein who was lousy at languages through high school.

Churchill said: "Boys, never, never, never, never, never, never, never, never, never, never, never give up."

POSITIVE NEGATIVISM

He knew, of course, certain "basics" had to be met for success, particularly in terms he achieved. But what an anachronism he would be considered in this world were he to stand before a body of students, or adults, and reiterate his positive negativism.

Churchill must have known that we sometime reject others because we see our weaknesses in them, that certain strengths are more interesting. For me, it is the sum that counts, the inside and out.

We are in such a hurry these days we rarely know ourselves. Knowing another person is just as difficult and as rewarding. Though we may be able to blow it off course, the world still runs on confidence in others. We give up a bit of naivete to become knowledgable. But it should never take away the strength to love someone more than oneself or an idea more than ignorance. You can be independent, even in his day, if you can do that.

In Milam County, schools are preparing for open houses, classroom visitation, and other special events to mark the week.

Cameron schools will host open houses on two different nights next week. Ben Milam, Ada Henderson, and Cameron Junior High will host open houses from 7 until 9 p. m. Tuesday, March 7.

An open house held in conjunction with the science fair will be held at Yoe High School on Thursday, March 9.

Supt. D. R. Dodson said the two nights will mean less congestion and give more time for parents to visit schools.

No special events are planned for the Buckholts school. Supt. Leon Brady said parents can visit classrooms anytime during the week, and can eat in the cafeteria with their children if they want to.

On Friday, March 3, the school will host a bingo night and turkey supper, with proceeds to go to the athletic fund and student activity fund.

The supper will be from 5 to 7 and bingo will be played in the gym from 7 til 10. Tickets for the supper are $1 for students and $1.50 for adults.

ROGERS

Rogers Schools will also welcome visitors to classrooms all week and an open house will follow the PTA meeting Monday night from 8 until 9.

Tuesday there will be a home and family living program for 8th graders who will be in high school next year.

And on Friday, a special coffee will honor Rogers teachers.

MILANO

Milano will have open house all week, with parents visiting classrooms. Persons wishing to eat in the cafeteria are asked to notify the teacher ahead of time.

The student council at high school will register guests and elementary representatives will register guests in the elementary classrooms.

Parents may eat in the cafeteria if they send word by their children that they are going to do so, Supt. B. C. Sims said.

Projects on display will include notebooks, art work, a science display, a model of a house by the building class, and other displays.

Ex Farm Hand Lives Off Parties

By Michael Hayes
Reuter Correspondent

MADRID

When farm-hand Dionisio Dominguez came to the big city five years ago from the parched fields of Estremadura in south - west Spain, it was hard to make his daily bread.

But he quickly learned the secret of eating well and paying nothing -- he became a professional gate-crasher of wedding parties.

Dionisio proudly pro - claims he has been an uninvited -- but rarely unwelcome -- guest at more than 1,500 wedding receptions, not to mention hundreds of first - communion parties, testimonial dinners and fraternity luncheons. And it has not cost him one centimo.

It all began, he recounted, when shortly after arriving in Madrid from his native Badajoz a brother invited him to a wedding reception in a local restaurant.

"There was another wedding part in the same room. I was a bit hungry so after polishing off one meal, I went and sat down at the other table. It's a funny thing, but nobody noticed me," he recalled.

This set him thinking. Before long he launched himself on his gate-crashing career.

From then on, Dionisio said, it has been a rare day when he has not dined on the traditional wedding fare of roast chicken, wine and cream cake.

"To tell you the truth, I don't like wedding cake and I'm fed up with chicken. I try to exchange it for a nice cutlet whenever I can."

He says he tries to move around the city's wealth of restaurants as much as possible to avoid detection by sharp - eyed caterers and waiters.

The ploy does not always work, but he has yet to be thrown out of feast.

He explained: "If the waiter calls in the police and they tell me to leave, I merely stand up and agree to do so, if that is what the bridegroom wants. Now, what man on the first day of his married life wants to get involved in a fuss?"

He does admit he has had some near misses. Whenever he suspects he might be outstaying his welcome, he diverts attention from himself by shouting "Long live the bride" or something similar.

Soon, he says, the whole room rings with cheers and he can merge into the background.

Once he very nearly overstepped the mark, when he began shouting "Long live the bridegroom's parents." The room fell silent, and a man sitting next to him whispered the reason: the bridegroom was an orphan.

That day he finished his meal and left more hurriedly than usual.

'Uptown' Show...

An example of the change in what was considered rural life is the cotton style show staged by the Milam Farm Bureau the other night. It was an "uptown" presentation.

It was not only current styles from stores in Cameron, Rockdale, Thorndale and Temple. It was cotton styles presented by some 45 Milam Countians wearing about 100 different outfits, for men, women and children.

Farm organizations only a few years ago would not have considered this type of promotion for a basic commodity, cotton, nor would have most men from non-metro areas, even organization leaders, have participated.

It is another sign that farm interests are stylish as well as economic, hardly any different in clothes than town or city people.

About 250 people, many of them men, watched the hour-long effort and came away with the feeling that cotton is a good idea in clothing and modern life is attractive to people everywhere, not just in Houston, Dallas or San Antonio.

Funding 'Folk Fete'

We hope Folk Fete, Inc., receives the support such a community effort already deserves and anticipates in future years.

For example, imagine the mall area open to Folk Fete efforts, including the ethnic dances, symphony orchestra, theatre groups, singing groups, all on several stages.

Surrounding this would be booths of all types of arts, sculpture, crafts, ethnic foods, sidewalk cafes, walking music groups, antique displays in store windows, literally blocks of variety of entertainment for the growing crowds at Folk Fete each June.

Add to this fiddlers contest, rock bands, western and latin groups, and the prospect for a major festival for statewide attract hits home.

A band shell can be made available for evening performances of symphonic groups, choral groups, whatever might strike the fancy and pocketbook of Folk Fete, Inc.

These things are determinded in part by how well this fund drive is supported, starting this week. When's the last time you saw this kind of potential in a town this size?

Support Folk Fete, Inc., and you can answer it is the first time and the place will be Cameron. Should you wonder if this type of corporation is successful, remember that Cameron Industrial Foundation, Inc., started the same way.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

TRUTH ABOUT THE RAND CORPORATION

REP. CHARLES H. WILSON (Calif.) ". . . The Rand Corp. has been the subject of public discussion since it became known that Daniel Ellsberg had been an employee of Rand at the time when he said he obtained possession of the so-called PENTAGON PAPERS.

"Rand is a private NON-PROFIT corporation engaged entirely in research and analysis of problems of American security and public welfare.

"It is concerned primarily with the kinds of problems Federal, State, and local leaders face in making policy choices. The problems are usually large, complicated, long term and expensive. . .

"The Rand Corp is located in Santa Monica, Calif., with additional research facilities in Washington, D.C., and New York City. There are about 1,000 employees about half of them professional researchers. . .

"From its beginning, Rand dealt with a wide range of subjects related to the future security of the Nation. There were studies of rocket engines, high-energy fuels, computers, radar detection, and effects of high-energy radiation. . .

"The work has ranged from the analysis of water supply, urban transportation, weather modification, and the causes of teacher shortages. . .

"Almost all Rand analysis look for more economical use of resources, but some are aimed directly at identifying possible money - saving changes for the service. THE RESULTING SAVINGS EASILY PAY RAND'S COST TO THE DEFENSE DEPARTMENT. Here are some examples:

"Air Force Material Management. The Rand Base Stockage model was the basis of cumulative inventory savings which range upward to $200 million. . .

"Avionics (development and production of electrical devices for use in aviation) development and procurement practices. Rand suggested strategies for repair and maintenance of avionics, tailored to the needs in the field, which can save probably $4 million a year and provide better availability of systems. . .

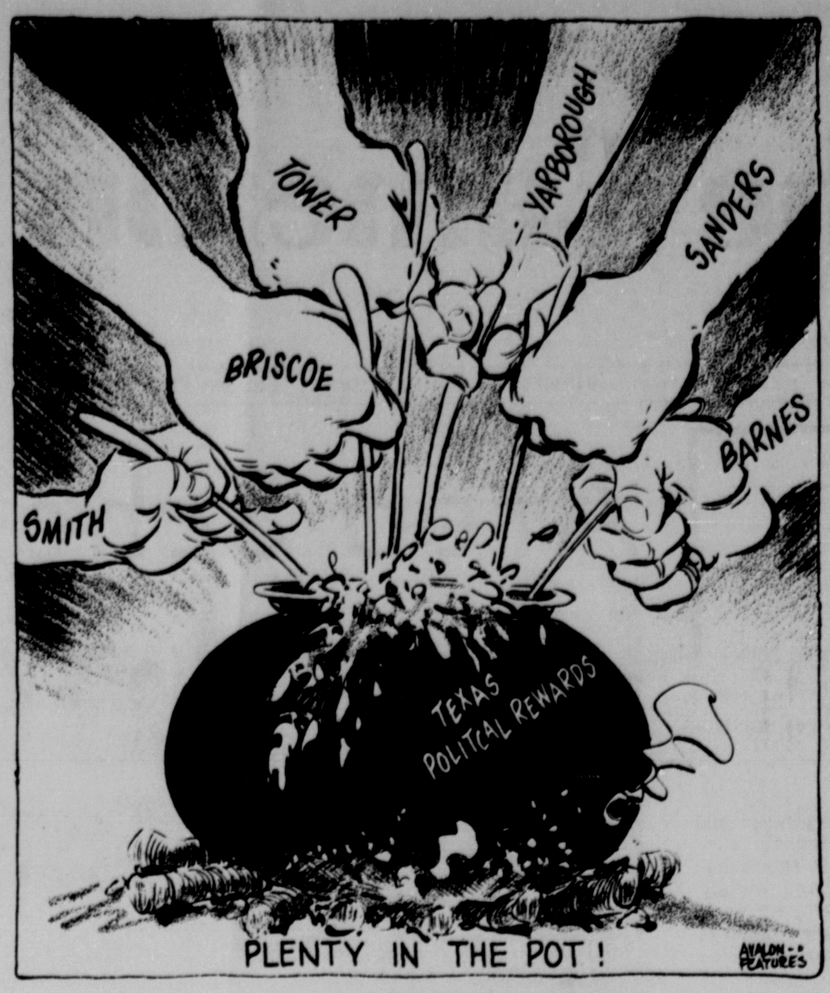

"Rand remains dedicated primarily to service in the national security area, but with a newer and growing contribution in domestic affairs. . .

"Current funding restrictions applied to Federal Contract Research Centers by the Congress and the Department of Defense has reduced Rand's DOD funding from about $19 million to $16 million. . . This is a heavy blow to Rand, but its researchers and management continue to be dedicated to professional excellence and to public service.

Governor Proposes Food Stamp Program For State

By Bill Boykin

State operation and funding of a food stamp program in all 254 Texas counties was proposed this week by Gov. Preston Smith.

Cost to the state is estimated at $17 million to $20 million, but Smith says the expenditure would generate over $285 million of economic activity in Texas cities and counties and offer low income citizens opportunity for better nourishment than is provided by commodity programs in some counties.

Among problems with the proposal is lack of money available at the moment to the U. S. Department of Agriculture which funds a large portion of the food stamp program. USDA says it would have to ask for additional congressional appropriations to fund the governor's proposed state - wide program.

Smith says he believes the state's share of the cost would be money well spent and it would relieve counties of the financial burden of administering the program and issuing stamps -- requirements under new federal guidelines.

Texas Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell said he doubts the statewide program could be initiated by the Sept. 1, 1972, start of the state's new fiscal year, as proposed by the governor, but he will talk to the governor about it.

Smith still says he wants to wait as long as possible before calling a special session of the Legislature this year to write an appropriations bill for fiscal 1972 and handle whatever other matters the governor chooses to submit -- including the food stamp proposal. He estimates cost of a special session at $800,000 to $1 million. Others claim his cost figure is far too high.

EDITORS' POLL

Newspaper editors and publishers were polled on state political races last week at the meeting of the West Texas Press Association in Sweetwater. Question one asked the editors was who they thought would carry their counties.

These were the results: GOVERNOR: Smith, 15, Barnes, 11: Briscoe, 9. U. S. SENATE: Tower, 11; Yarborough, 10; Sanders, 7. LT. GOV.: Connally, 10, Hobby 5: Christie, 3: Hall, 1 and Jones, 1.

Asked whom they would vote for, the editors said: GOVERNOR: Briscoe, 15; Barnes, 8; Smith, 6; Farenthold, 4. U. S. SENATE: Tower, 20; Sanders, 5; Yarborough 5. LT. GOV.: Connally, 11; Hobby, 7 and Christie, 3.

ELECTION FINANCING

Still up in the air is the question of how state primary elections this year are to be financed.

Secretary of State Bob Bullock, the state's chief election officer, says the federal courts have clearly stated he has authority to use state funds for operation of the elections, just as state funds are used to conduct general elections. Other state officials say a special legislative session would be needed to provide the money.

TIMBER RECOVERY

Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin has filed suit to recover from the federal government $732,000 for lands ceded to national forests of Texas.

Texas seeks money for stumpage sales on 658,513 acres in four national forests. The forests are Angelina (Angelina, Jasper, Nacogdoches and San Augustine counties); Davy Crockett (Houston and Trinity counties); Sabine (Jasper, Sabine, San Augustine and Shelby counties) and Sam Houston (Montgomery, San Jacinto and Walker counties).

Under a 1911 act of congress, 25 per cent of money received from each national forest was to be paid by the U.S. to the state in which the forest was located. Martin alleges that while there have been $2.9 million in Texas forest stumpage sales over the last six years, the federal government has withheld from the state the 25 percent share due it.

HOG QUARANTINE

Texas Animal Health Commission removed 28 counties from the hog cholera quarantine list last week and placed them under restricted movement.

Counties are Aransas, Bandera, Bastrop, Brooks, Caldwell, Calhoun, Colorado, Comal, Dimmit, Fayette, Frio, Guadalupe, Jim Hogg, Zapata, Jim Wells, Kendall, Kenedy, Kleberg, La Salle, Lavaca, Live Oak, McMullen, Matagorda, Medina, Nueces, Refugio, San Patricio and Wharton.

COURTS SPEAK

A $50 monthly expense allowance as mayor of Rusk does not bar Emmett Whitehead from running for the legislature, the Texas Supreme Court has ruled.

A federal district judge granted a government motion to dismiss an indictment of a San Antonio bank for making a loan to a gubernatorial campaign in 1970.

A Galveston district judge held the board of the rich Moody Foundation should be increased from three to seven members.

CRIME TAX

Houston and Harris County led the state during the first four months' collection of the new "crime tax", a court cost levied for use by the Texas Criminal Justice Council to upgrade local law enforcement planning.

The Legislature enacted the tax in 1971 to provide money for CJC. Under the tax, additional court costs of $2.50 are levied for misdemeanor convictions in city, county and justice of the peace courts, $5 for conviction on a misdemeanor in district courts and $10 for felony convictions.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

As I understand the news from China, although at first all the news we could get was the newspapers over here reporting that the newspapers over there had, on the second day, discovered that President Nixon was there, at any rate, as I understand it, a new cultural relationship now exists between China and the United States.

Naturally, a cultural relationship is based on one nation's respecting the other's cultural practices, and there's one point that has me worried.

It's chop sticks.

I understand President and Mrs. Nixon practiced several weeks and -- I saw it on television -- managed to handle the sticks fairly successfully. But that was with Chinese food.

Now you take American food, that's going to be a different story. Show me the man who can eat soup with a set of chop sticks.

Ice cream? At first, when it's still fairly firm, I suppose an expert could dig in all right, but when it starts to melt, and an experienced ice cream eater knows ice cream tastes even better when it starts to melt a little, then you're going to run into real trouble, although I guess an ingenious person could hollow the sticks out and when nobody was looking use them as straws.

I won't even imagine what'd happen to a man armed only with chop sticks and confronted with a T-bone steak, not to mention poached eggs or cornflakes.

It seems to me there may be more problems with this cultural exchange than some people anticipated.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Last To Die

Husband and wife both perish in an automobile accident. Seemingly, they die at the same time. Yet, if one has outlived the other even for an instant, that may make an enormous difference to their heirs. It may decide whether the husband's relatives or the wife's relatives inherit the estate.

Accordingly, in this "common disaster" situation, strenuous efforts are often made to figure out which of the two victims was the last to die.

In a recent case, double deaths occurred when a speeding truck rammed into the passenger side of a car. Both husband and wife died instantly.

But since the wife—sitting on the passenger side—had been struck first, a court concluded that the husband must have lived a fraction of a second longer. By this split second, the wife's relatives lost out on their claim to a share of the estate.

With common disasters becoming more frequent, many kinds of evidence have been found useful in deciding who died last. Anything from the position of the bodies to their physical condition may provide the telltale clue.

On the other hand, there may be no evidence at all, good enough to be trusted in the courtroom.

In another case, a mother and daughter were found dead of asphyxiation. The only "evidence" as to which one died last was that the daughter probably held out longer because she was younger.

But a court said this was plain guesswork, and turned down a claim put forth by relatives of the daughter.

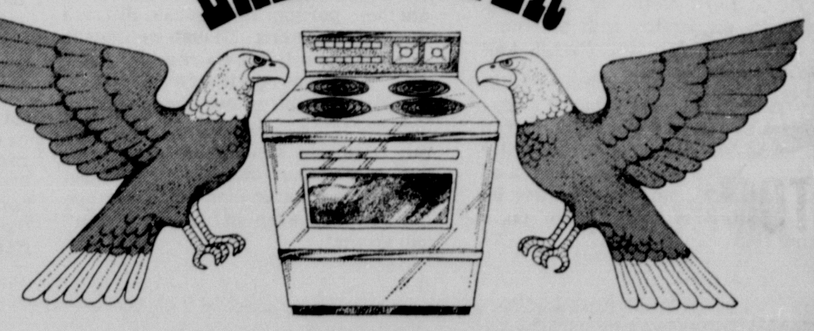

Suppose the victims really did die simultaneously (or, at least, no one can prove otherwise). To cover this situation, most states have passed a Simultaneous Death Act. This Act lays down specific rules to settle the various conflicting claims that may arise.

A better solution in many cases is to have a "simultaneous death clause," tailored to your individual wishes, included in your will. In these days of high-speed transportation, such a contingency is well worth taking into account.

Form 1040 U.S. Individual ... Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q - Are tax rates any lower for single people this year?

A - Yes. The lower tax rates for single persons are reflected in the tax tables and tax rate schedules in the instructions for your 1971 Federal income tax return.

Q - I have two jobs. Can I deduct transportation expenses between one place of work and the other?

A - If you work at two places in a day, whether or not for the same employer, you may deduct the expense of getting from one place to the other. However, if for some personal reason you do not go directly from one location to the other, you may deduct only the amount it would have cost you to go directly from one location to the second. Transportation expenses incurred in going to and from a part-time Saturday job are commuting expenses and non-deductible.

Q - My son earned over $2,000 from a summer job last year but banked most of it. Do I count the earnings he saved as support furnished by my son when figuring out whether I can claim him as a dependent?

A - Income not spent by your son does not have to be counted towards his support. However, if you son spends part of his 1971 savings this year on support items, that amount counts toward support for 1972.

Q - If I pay someone to fill out my tax return, is he responsible for any mistakes?

A - If you are not going to prepare your own return, you are still responsible for the accuracy of every item entered on your return. Therefore, you should exercise the utmost care in choosing as a preparer one who is both knowledgeable in tax matters and scrupulous in preparing a complete and accurate return.

Q - Are there any penalties for a tax preparer who sells information from a person's Federal income tax return?

A - Yes. The Revenue Act of 1971 made it a misdemeanor for any person engaged in the business of preparing tax returns, or providing services in connection with such as business or for any person who receives compensation for filling out a return, to disclose Federal tax return information or use it for any purpose other than to assist in preparing the return. Violations may be punished with a $1,000 fine or a year in prison, or both.

Q - What are the most common mistakes that might delay a tax refund?

A - Some of the most common errors that may delay a refund include: failure to use the label that came with your tax return package; failure to attach all Forms W-2 and other required statements and schedules; incorrect or missing Social Security numbers; mathematical errors; using the wrong tax table, line or column; and missing signatures.

Pecan Meeting Set For County

By Bill McCutchen

PECAN MEETING SET

Milam County Horticulture Committee, Anton Anderle, chairman, announces a Pecan meeting March 6th at 7:30 p.m. at the Vocational Agri. Building in Rockdale.

Dr. J. W. Worthington, Extension Horticulturist from Stephenville, and Dr. Jerral Johnson, Extension Plant Pathologist from College Station will present the program.

Worthington will cover pecan varieties, budding and grafting and Johnson will cover pecan diseases.

The program is designed for homeowners with one or two trees as well as the commercial producer. The pecan tree is a favorite with homeowners in Milam County as it makes a beautiful yard tree and yields high quality nuts with good management.

The meeting, set before the growing season, will be an excellent opportunity to get started off right on what should be good pecan year.

All interested persons are most welcome to attend.

BRUCELLOSIS

"Milam County must retest or face quarantine." These seem to be the only options available to Milam County cattlemen, and the consensus at the Brucellosis meeting last Wednesday night in Cameron was that this really left no choice but retesting.

Dr. Robert S. Pate, with the Texas Animal Health Commission told the group that at least 50 herds totaling 2,000 head must be retested in the county prior to September to maintain the modified certified status that the county presently has.

Pate said that certification was becoming increasingly important as about 30 states have eradicated brucellosis and many more were in the process, making it more and more difficult to ship cattle to these areas. Texas in 1970 accounted for 51.8 percent of the brucellosis infected herds in the U.S.

In many counties the recertification route that Milam County faces is not necessary because sufficient slaughter cattle are tested through the "Market Cattle Identification" or "back tag" program at the local livestock commission company.

In commenting on the "back tagging" Wally Eldred, Cameron Livestock Auction said that they were perfectly willing to back tag if local producers wanted it and would say so.

A back tag program would eliminate the necessity of retesting every three years to maintain the county's status and be more effective in eliminating brucellosis.

Dr. Pate also said it was highly probably that a new program would be initiated in the near future requiring a brucellosis test on all cattle that move, whether by private treaty, to a packer, or other transactions. Such a program Pate said would be geared to eradication of the disease.

Brucellosis is an infectious and costly disease that mainly affects cattle, swine, and goats. Brucellosis of cattle was formerly known as Bang's disease and infectious abortion.

Symptoms include slow bleeding, abortions, birth of weak calves, retained placentas, and often temporary or permanent infertility. In short it is a disease that is difficult to live with.

Dr. Pate said, "that he called the meeting at this time to give producers the opportunity of testing while they were feeding and able to handle livestock better". He said, that there is no charge for testing, but producers would be out time and labor of pinning livestock.

For convenience of cattlemen, the Milam County Extension Service will help in coordinating retesting. If you wish to have your cattle inspected at a certain time or date, contact the county agents office in Cameron.

LANDSCAPING

Landscaping is a long term investment, points out Everett Janne, Extension landscape horticulturist. Trees and shrubs properly placed can increase in value five to six times in the first 10 years and will continue to increase in following years.

FEEDER PIG BOOM

Feeder pig production is on the boom in East Texas as well as in central and southern areas of the state, says Dr. Bill Thomas, Extension swine specialist. These areas offer land that is generally cheaper, is well drained and provides some natural shelter from the weather.

BEAT THE WINTER HAY BILL - These cows are grazing on Ermelo Lovegrass, a warm season perennial that has the ability to remain standing all winter and stay partially green during much of its winter use, according to Franz Pittman, Soil Conservationist, Cameron. The field-cured roughage is excellent under proper management and can be well utilized by livestock being fed the required protein supplement. The above photo was taken on the Bob Bailey land near Milano. To this date he has not fed hay this winter.

Boost Your Lawn By Removing Thatch Buildup

Have you ever wondered why your lawn grass appears unhealthy even though it is deep and spongy? The spongy feel of your lawn may not be evidence of a strong, vigorous grass, says Al Novosad, Extension agronomist at Texas A&M University. This "luxurious" feel may be due to a buildup of mat and thatch.

Thatch and mat are a tightly intermingled layer of living and dead stems, leaves and roots of grasses which develops between the layer of green vegetation and the soil surface, Novosad explains.

Too much thatch keeps water and fertilizer from properly penetrating the soil, makes some diseases worse, and apparently prevents grass from putting down a deep root system.

"The best time to remove thatch is in late winter or early spring after danger of a freeze is past," advises Novosad.

The proper use of a powered machine (rake, vertical mower) designed to remove thatch is probably the best way to alleviate this problem, says the agronomist. Scalping the lawn with a rotary mower set to mow as low as possible is also helpful. However, when scalping or dethatching St. Augustinegrass, do not allow the machine to go lower than the lowest stolons (runners).

"Use a power rake or mower annually to prevent thatch buildup, suggests Novosad. But be sure the soil is moist when removing thatch so as to prevent mechanical injury to grass."

According to the agronomist, thatch buildup can be due to several things, including mowing too high (frequent shorter mowing is helpful) and returning clippings. Also, some lawn grasses naturally accumulate more thatch than others.

Dealer Suspended Under P&S

Tommy J. Hines, of Tyler, has been suspended as a registered livestock dealer for violating payment and recordkeeping requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act, the U. S. Department of Agriculture said today.

Hines consented to the order. He waived oral hearing, and neither admitted nor denied the charges contained in an administrative complaint issued by USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration.

Hines purchases livestock throughout Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

The livestock purchases mentioned in the complaint have since been paid for. The cease and desist order -- like a permanent injunction -- was issued to prohibit future violations of the Act.

USDA Judicial Officer Thomas J. Flavin suspended Hines' registration under the P&S Act for 7 days, starting Feb. 28, 1972. He may not operate as a livestock dealer during that time.

Keeping Daily Records Is Aid For Income Tax

COLLEGE STATION

Having trouble with your income tax?

Save yourself a lot of frustration and money, too, by getting organized now for this time next year.

Mrs. Doris Myers, home management specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, suggested keeping a few simple tax records of tax - deductible items.

"Sometimes a notebook serves a better purpose and is easier to keep than a printed record book," the specialist said. "Simply divide the book into categories of spending or money outlay for those items that are tax-deductible when expenses are itemized.

"You never know at the beginning of the year just how much some of these expenses will be."

Mrs. Meyers said that medical expenses aren't certain until you get sick.

"Then it may be too late to be able to record all of them. Start the year off by keeping up with all of them by setting aside a portion of your book to record them. Separate medicines and drugs from other medical expenses. Since these expenses are handled separately on the tax form, it saves time to keep them separate from the beginning."

At the end of the year, the columns may be added quickly to determine if medicines and drugs total more than one per cent of a person's adjusted gross income.

One-half of premiums on health insurance, up to a limit of $150, may be deducted, even though medical expenses don't exceed three per cent of income and can't be claimed, the specialist said.

"Cost of travel to get medical or dental care may be counted as medical expense, subject to the three per cent limitation," Mrs. Myers added. "If you use your car, you may claim either out-of-pocket expenses or six cents a mile. If you claim mileage, it's a good idea to keep speedometer readings as proof of travel."

Another portion of a record book may be set up to record contributions to religious and charitable organizations. As these contributions are made throughout the year, record the date, the organization and the amount. Save receipts and canceled checks to further substantiate deductions.

"Costs of travel as a volunteer for church or charity are deductible," she said. "Using your car, you may claim either out-of-pocket expenses or six cents a mile. Again, speedometer readings would be advisable to have in your records."

Interest paid on home mortgage, charge accounts, installment contracts and loans for personal and household use are also deductible items that should be recorded. Early in 1971 the Internal Revenue Service ruled that all finance charges in credit cards and charge accounts are deductible as interest when deductions are itemized. Receipts showing amounts of interest paid should be kept for proof of payment.

When deductions are itemized, taxes on personal property, sales taxes and gasoline taxes are deductible.

"By keeping a simple record it's very easy to total these deductions and determine where you stand," Mrs. Myers said.

Landscaping Long Term Investment

Trees and shrubs adapted to an area and placed properly in the landscape can increase in value as much as five to six times in the first 10 years and will continue to increase in following years.

"To insure proper placing, develop a landscape plan before planting," advises Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "When building new homes, design the landscape before the home is constructed. Allocated a minimum of 10 percent of the cost of the house for a landscape budget.

After the house is several years old, the existing plan can still be renovated if the need arises. Consider the various use areas of the yard. Are these areas being used to their fullest potential?

"The approach or public area is usually considered "Don't hide a house by planting a forest in the front yard. Trees and shrubs must have room to develop to their fullest potential. Simplicity should keynote the design."

Emphasize the development of the outdoor living area, suggests the horticulturist. The homeowner should have time for relaxation and enjoyment with a minimum amount of time for upkeep. The living area in the back yard is usually screened with a fence, wall or shrub to provide privacy. For convenience and a feeling of unity, the outdoor living area should be readily accessible to the living room or family room.

The outdoor work area should be convenient to the kitchen, utility room and garage as these are considered work areas of the house. The work area is usually screened and may include space for drying clothes, a garbage rack, tool storage and the compost area, depending on the owner's requirements.

For maximum returns on your investment, consult a professional landscape architect, advises Janne. If this is inconvenient or you enjoy doing the planning and planting yourself, there are many excellent references available in the garden section of your favorite book store or library, he adds.

Milestones In Rose History

Roses (the genus Rosa) are cool weather plants and the native species are confined to the northern hemisphere. Rose species are to be found scattered over the cool and warm temperate and subtropic regions of Asia, Europe and North America.

All the ancient roses are now known as shrub-roses, and the oldest have an association with man dating back to the gardens of old China, the Mediterranean region and the civilizations of antiquity in northern Africa.

The Damask is depicted on the walls of the Palace of Knossos in Crete, which dates back to 2000 B. C., while Rosa gallica, known to the ancients as the "Red Rose", was used to decorate the shields of Persian warriors 1,000 or more years ago.

With the establishing of a trading factory at Canton in southern China by the English East India Company toward the close of the 17th century, the development of the modern rose began. In a hit or miss fashion, officers of that company sent home the China Monthly Rose (Rosa chinensis) and the tea scented rose of China (Rosa odorata).

The China Monthly Rose crossed with the French Rose (Rosa gallica) gave rise to the hybride Chinese rose.

The hybrid China and the hybrid Bourbon crossed with the Damask rose gave rise to the hybrid Perpetual, or remontant rose.

The hybrid Perpetual crossed with the tea rose of China (Rosa odorata) gave rise to the hybrid tea roses which today are presently the dominant rose class throughout the world.

Cong. Poage Explains Rural Bill

Cong. W. R. Poage in his newsletter explained that the House passed legislation designed to expand the activities of both the Farmers Home Administration and the Soil Conservation Service in providing loans and grants to expand rural facilities.

The bill attempts to bring to rural areas the same opportunity to borrow for the construction of homes as is presently available to those in cities, and it seeks to encourage and attract industry into rural locations because "we realize that no matter what amenities are available there must be a practical way of earning a livelihood," he said.

"There was a time not so long ago when Central Texas and all of America was full of thriving small towns," Poage said. "But times have changed and many of these towns are now but a memory or a dot on some old map.

"It is depressing indeed to visit community centers of a generation or two ago where today there is no school, no church, and often only one store of filling station," he continued.

"The Rural Development Bill, which I first introduced some time ago, and which was finally passed by the House this week, is an attempt to bring both the economic opportunity and pleasant living conditions to rural people, and by rural people I mean all those living in small towns of under 5,500 as well as the open country."

This Year, Plant the Proven, Dependable

Funk's G-522

GRAIN SORGHUM

MARVIN FINCH, Mertens—"I planted a small amount of G-522 four years ago. I liked it well enough that for the last three years I have planted my acreage to G-522. In 1972, I will also plant my grain crop to G-522. It is as good a hybrid as I can plant."

LOUIS JANDA, JR., Abbott—"I have planted G-522 for three years. It is a very dependable hybrid. I will plant part of my 1972 grain acres to G-522 along with Funk's G-393."

RAY LOVELESS, Milford—"I have planted G-522 for four years. It has consistently been the top performer for me. The yield has been excellent compared to other hybrids. Its standability and threshability is very good. It comes up good and grows off fast, and it's a money-maker."

These central Texas farmers planted Funk's G-522 during the past several years.

THEY LIKE G-522... AND SO WILL YOU!

BOBBY ARMSTRONG, Barry—"Compared to a competitive, G-522 had a greener stalk and leaves during the drouth. It also was the highest yielding hybrid of the four varieties that we planted in 1971. G-522's standability was good compared to the other hybrids."

RONNIE LOVELESS, Irene—"I have used G-522 on part of my acreage for three years. In 1972, the majority of my grain acres will be G-522. I like the way G-522 stands up, yields and threshes."

EDMUND SEBESTA, JR., Somerville—"We averaged approximately 4,200 pounds on 26 acres. G-522 has been in a test on my farm for four years. It has consistently been the top yielding hybrid. I am well pleased with the total performance."

Clothes Bulge? Time To Diet

By Christine Laws
County Home Demonstration Agent

If your clothes bulge and wad where they used to hang straight, it may be time to consider weight reduction.

Form - fitting winter fashions made of figure - revealing fabrics have made many people more diet conscious.

Before beginning any weight reduction program check with your physician.

Following the basic four food guide remains the best way to lose weight safely. Recent data shows that fat makes up only one-third of the total weight lost on starvation diets. The remaining loss comes from muscle.

However, reducing diets that allow the dieter to eat protein and fat but limit carbohydrates cause about two-thirds of the total weight loss to be fat. Muscle tissue makes up only one-third of the total weight loss on this type of diet.

In other words, if the total number of pounds lost on both diets were the same, the person on the reduction diet would actually lose more fat tissue and less muscle tissue than the person on the starvation diet.

The dieter should consider other factors than just what foods to eat when losing weight.

Studies on weight reduction show that rats fed only one meal a day had more fat tissue than rats fed throughout the day. This was true even though both groups of rats ate the same kind of food in the same amounts.

Physical exercise plays a part in weight reduction. A person less active than usual needs fewer calories from his food than he would normally require.

To lose weight while following the basic four food guide, select lower calorie foods from each of the groups. Choose skim milk or buttermilk rather than whole milk from the milk group. Fish, chicken and liver made good choices from the meat group. From the bread and cereals group choose enriched breads and whole grain cereals instead of cakes, cookies, and donuts.

Remember, a truly successful diet means permanently changing eating habits so you can maintain a desirable weight.

Corn Tops 'Specials' On Food Lists

COLLEGE STATION

"Look for 'specials' on canned sweet corn this week at the grocery store where you shop," advised Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Estimated to be the largest crop on record, supplies of canned corn remain available from the 1971 supply. And generally, an abundance of a food drops prices drastically. Canned corn is so easily kept and quickly prepared, you'll want to keep a good supply on hand."

Mrs. Clyatt said that the wise homemaker will include potatoes, dry yellow onions, hard shell squash, green cabbage, cooking greens, carrots and rutabagas on this week's shopping list. Prices also remain moderate on broccoli, zucchini squash, eggplant, celery and cauliflower.

Canned peaches and fruit cocktail dominate fruit counters while supplies remain large. Excellent quality can be found in sweet juicy grapefruit and oranges, so enjoy them during this season of plentiful supply. Tangeloes, lemons, bananas, apples, pineapples and pears are also good choices price-wise. Delicious fresh strawberries make their way into the market, mostly from Mexico.

"A heavy demand continues for beef," the specialist said. "This demand and limited supplies keep beef prices up. Choose chuck roast and steaks, round steaks, ground beef and beef liver for your best meat buys."

Many markets feature ham or ham portions, Boston Butt roasts, shoulder steaks, quarter loin and sliced end rib chops.

"Special promotions exist on turkeys at some markets. Fryers and eggs remain an excellent value," Mrs. Clyatt noted.

Marlin Man Indicted For Forging

United States Attorney William S. Sessions annouced today that Hans E. Hill, age 54, Marlin, was indicted on four counts of Secret Service Law violations by a Federal Grand Jury in Waco, Texas. Hill was charged with forging the signature and passing two Government checks in the amounts of $920.21 and $1,018.63.

Hill was previously indicted on January 20, 1972, by an Austin grand jury which charged him with 19 counts of Internal Revenue tax law violations, four of which charged that Hill claimed a total of twelve false dependents on his personal income tax returns for 1965-1968.

Eleven counts charged that Hill aided and assisted in preparing false income tax returns for other persons by claiming false dependents on each of their returns. The remaining four counts charged that Hill presented to the Internal Revenue Service four income tax returns, each of which represented false claims for income tax refunds. These four false refunds totaled $3,487.90.

Farenhold Announces For Governor

State Rep. Frances Farenthold of Corpus Christi launched her campaign for Governor with a vigorous whirlwind tour throughout Texas.

Describing her candidacy "as giving the voters a choice other than between two contaminated candidates and a legislator from the fifties," Rep. Farenthold made appearances in Austin, Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Waco, Wichita Falls, Amarillo, Lubbock, El Paso, Midland-Odessa, San Angelo, Abilene, Bryan-College Station, Beaumont-Port Arthur, Lufkin, Tyler, Texarkana and Marshall.

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times endorsed Rep. Farenthold's candidacy saying, "she has many qualities that are desperately needed in Texas in these troubled, changing times."

The editorial further stated, "The status quo is no longer good enough. Fresh perspective and new initiatives will be required to cope with the future of a state that is now in transition. We believe that the state, in the words of the late John F. Kennedy, can get moving again under the leadership of Mrs. Farenthold. We commend her to the people of Texas."

TSTI Group Building Pre-Fabricated Structure

WACO

Twenty-eight students in the heavy commercial construction class at Texas State Technical Institute are completing a tilt-up building on the James Connally Campus.

The pre-fabricated type structure will be used by building construction technical programs at State Tech.

The tilt-up method of construction is a pre-cast concrete technique whereby wall slabs are poured into a form on the floor of a building. Inserts are then placed in the reinforced concrete, and lifted into place with a heavy-duty crane.

Tilt - up construction is adaptable to many types of structures. Robert Young, head of construction technology at State Tech, designed the two - story structure under construction on the James Connally Campus. Instructor for the class is Lacy Williams.

The first floor, which is about 80 per cent complete, is being built by second year students. First year construction students will finish the second floor of the project.

When finished, the building will measure fifty sixty feet, and will have a modern mansard - style roof with a flat top and curved sides.

The walls, which will weigh about four tons when fully constructed, are made of "architectural" rock finish.

Easter Seal Drive Starts

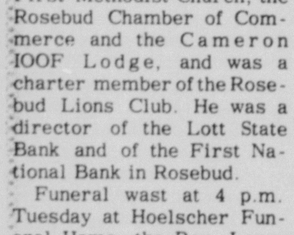

Easter Seal appeal letters have been delivered in Milam County, according to William Kelm, Easter Seal representative of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas.

The Society offers physical and occupational therapy, speech and hearing programs, and special equipmen loans to enable disabled persons to make the best use of their abilities to overcome handicaps. These services are financed by the annual Easter Seal Appeal.

The Society also provides for research into the causes and cures of crippling conditions, finances public education programs, and provides scholarships for training of professional personnel to staff rehabilitation centers.

Connie, The Conformist

The last thing Connie intended to be was a conformist. So one day Connie resolved in dead earnest to be a nonconformist. She joined the group. She learned their views, their values, their life-style. Soon the cycle was complete—Connie had embraced the way of the nonconformist . . . had conformed to it.

The adventure of Connie is a reminder that conformity is part of human nature. We all conform to something. And the seemingly sharp differences apparent between certain life-styles merely reflect the contrasts and contradictions between the things to which men conform.

The role of the Church in our society is to provide spiritual and moral values that enrich life. In a world in which all men conform to something, the Church's aim with youth and adults is to give them SOMETHING WORTH CONFORMING TO.

New Spacing Saves $200

Comparative test houses have proved that 24-inch spacing for studs, joists and rafters, instead of the traditional 16 inches, can save more than $200 on a two-story, 2,100-square-foot home.

The NAHB Research Institute conducted a time and materials study on two houses, identical except for the spacing of framing, in an Oakland, Calif., subdivision, and completed its report in January.

Western wood wall and floor framing, installed with plywood, saved nearly $219 favoring 24-inch spacing, including $164.25 on framing and $54.60 for reduced drywall and electrical work.

Lumber savings were substantial, but reduction in work time was even greater. Framing time was trimmed by more than 19 man-hours, or about 15 percent, the home builder institute found.

The stage is well set for builder changeover to 24-inch spacing; its elements are accepted by the major building codes and a growing list of local codes. The lumber industry is promoting the new "Mod 24" system with code enforcers and builders.

Producing Brain Waves?

Can people become more creative by "learning" how to facilitate the production of brain wave patterns thought to be associated with reverie and imagery?

This theory is posed by a leading scientist, Dr. Elmer E. Green, of the Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kansas.

With support from the National Institute of Mental Health, Dr. Green is testing his theory in a study that reflects growing interest of U.S. scientists in the achievement of voluntary control over body processes.

The Yoga-like principle that the function of various body organs may be controlled at will is being explored through a technique known as "biofeedback". This employs principles that control can be achieved by constantly informing an individual from moment to moment with electronic signals exactly how a particular organ in his body is functioning.

Change in organ function is brought about by "reinforcement", that is, by informing the individual, again by electronic devices, when small changes in the desired direction occur.

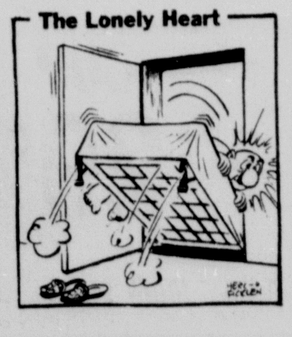

Prior studies by Dr. Green and others have indicated that, using an electroencephalograph —brain wave machine—the alpha brain wave pattern, which is associated with reverie, can be brought under voluntary self control.

Now the researcher plans to "teach" volunteers control of the theta brain wave, which signals a fleeting and relaxed state thought to be associated with creativity.

Dr. Green has been engaged in basic research which led recently to the experimental training of migraine headache sufferers, some of whom "learned" through biofeedback techniques to relieve their own symptoms.

Research in this field points to the possibility of voluntary control over "involuntary" systems such as the heart, the stomach and intestines, and blood pressure, as well as the brain. Such studies are also of great scientific interest regarding how mind and body mechanism interrelate with each other.

Series H Bonds.
For when you and your Series E Bonds retire.

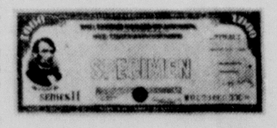

If you have a comfortable nest egg of Series E Bonds stashed away, and you're thinking of retiring, here's a helpful tip. Exchange your E Bonds for H Bonds.

That way the tax on the interest you've accrued is deferred. And, the new interest you'll be earning on H Bonds will provide you with a steady income. Interest checks will be mailed right to your door once every six months.

H Bonds are now available in denominations of $500, $1000, and $5000. And a special $10,000 denomination is available for E Bond transfers. H Bonds pay 5% interest when held to maturity of 10 years (4.29% the first year; thereafter 5.10% to maturity). That's the highest rate ever.

Ask your banker about the advantages of H Bonds.

They're a great way to make your money go further when you and your E Bonds retire.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. H Bonds are redeemable after six months. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

New Careers Training

A new careers training program, designed to increase the scope and effectiveness of community mental health services, is being launched.

The program will aid state and local efforts to recruit and train the new types of personnel needed to serve geographic areas and population groups that have been neglected by traditional mental health services.

The term of these workers, "New Careerists", will be broadly defined. It will include individuals who will be trained to do new mental health jobs such as outreach, or going out into the community and neighborhoods to work with people, and patient advocacy, or workers who will serve to help mental patients by representing their interests and aiding them in various ways to get help during their illness and the recovery and rehabilitation period.

The program will also involve the training of persons for some of the kinds of work and jobs that have been previously considered to be the exclusive domain of more highly trained professionals, such as psychologists, social workers, pychiatric nurses, and psychiatrists.

In other words, "New Careerists" will become important members of the treatment team in a variety of community and hospital settings, particularly in areas where mental health services are now in short supply.

About one and a half million dollars has been earmarked for the next year to support this kind of training, which will be administered by the Division of Manpower and Training Programs of the National Institute of Mental Health.

Grants will be awarded for carrying on the training to educational institutions, community agencies, community mental health centers, and hospitals.

This new program is part of our continuing effort to attack mental illness through the help of trained workers employed in a wide variety of mental health activities. Manpower is in critically short supply, yet there are rewarding and satisfying job opportunities for young and old in many fields of mental health today.
